Facts About Melamine

Melamine is a thermosetting plastic. It is strong, lightweight and hard, but can be scratched or broken or cracked. It resists acids and alkalis, and most food stains but can be stained. It stands fairly warm temperatures, but absorbs heat and softens if it gets too hot. Avoid exposure to hot objects, and prolonged exposure to boiling water. Stains may be removed with commercial cleaners made for melamine. Never use scouring powder or any other abrasive.

Prices listed are for white and black melamine. Grey is slightly higher.
